Introduction

The Promotora Project is a family engagement project that seeks to empower a group of teacher candidates (TCs) and community liaisons, or what we call Early Literacy Promotoras, to support the early literacy development of Spanish speaking children in California and beyond.

Literature shows that Educator Preparation Programs (EPPs) often lack the time and capacity to provide TCs with the opportunity to engage in meaningful family engagement activities. Research also indicates that when TCs and caregivers are involved in purposeful family engagement activities there is a positive impact on both student achievement and how TCs effectively work with families in the future. Thus, BranchED is seeking 3 Teacher Educators and their community partners to work with us to develop curriculum/professional development on implementing dialogic reading strategies focused on emergent bilingual learners. The group of Early Literacy Promotoras are part of the process by participating in the design team, co-facilitating professional development/workshop sessions, and recruiting and supporting the development of Spanish speaking families to implement dialogic reading strategies at home.
